BUTTERFIELD CANYON ELEMENTARY COLD WEATHER & SNOW DAY POLICIES

Parents,

There are many families that do not know the school policy for cold weather days. We want to give you that information so that you can plan with your student(s) what winter clothing is appropriate for which days.

23 degrees or warmer = Outside day

22 degrees or colder = Inside day

If there is a bad weather inversion, or if it is raining heavily, there is also a chance of having an inside day. These days are decided by the administration, and may change several times throughout the day.

The easiest way to tell if it is an inside day is to look for the orange flag in the drop off zone. If you see the flag it is an inside day due to cold temperature.

Butterfield Canyon Elementary now has our own Weather Station. This allows us to get an accurate temperature reading right at our school building. It will be the main source of information in deciding if it will be an outside or inside day.

You may check this yourself by going to <http://www.weatherlink.com/user/bobcats/>

Be sure to send your student(s) with the appropriate winter wear each and every day. It's better to be prepared than left out in the cold, so send those hats and gloves! Plan ahead to keep your child warm.

For the safety of your child and the other children, please review the following restrictions. The students are not to be sliding on the ice, throwing snowballs, or rolling down the hills. We have injuries every year due to students not following these rules; therefore, disciplinary consequences will be in place if this behavior occurs. If your child has extenuating health concerns that make cold weather difficult, please contact your child's teacher.
